

For Many, a Narrow Escape

By MERVYN DANK
ORANGE IS—One survivor after another told today of narrowly escaping death in last night's tornado.

"We started to bed and turned off the TV set," Virgil related. "As we walked to the bedrooms we heard a roar and the house shook. Then the roof came off. That's all I remember. It's a miracle we got out."

Stopping on the fallen roof and walls amid rubble in which nothing remained upright, Virgil said: "I don't know what I'll do. I'll salvage what I can. I'm still so shook up I don't know what to do."

The storm was freakish, like most tornadoes, smashing one house and sparing the next. Herbert "Browning" 28, waited back home with his son Herbert Jr., 4, in his arms, wrapped in a green quilt. Mrs. Browning joined them in fleeing moments after the twister struck nearby. They found their place undamaged.

Mike Birmingham, 15, a draftsman in the other half of the Virgil duplex, stood in a room which had housed his ham radio equipment. "I opened the door to come into the room and zingo! The whole house exploded," he related. "I had 500 records, all the way from Presley to Fats Domino. They're over Texas now."

Hazlewood To Submit Bill on Licensing Potter's Bondsmen

By MARGARET MAYER
Globe-Times Austin Bureau
AUSTIN, Nov. 8—An effort to bring Potter County bail bondsmen under a licensing act that now applies to the state's four largest cities only will be made today.

The bill was ready for floor debate Friday although it had not yet been submitted by Gov. Price Daniel. Hazlewood introduced it and obtained a committee report Thursday as soon as it was known that the governor would open the session to local legislation.

The license could be revoked for failure to pay on a forfeited bond within 30 days of any final judgment, for any interference with the administration of justice or for splitting fees with anyone not licensed as a bondsman. There are also penalties on a bondsman who suggests the employment of any attorney to his client and on getting a third party to solicit bond business.

Ike Says West Is Stronger, Outlines Program of Action

By MERRIVAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower told the nation Thursday night he has named a "czar" to push U.S. missile development and other scientific programs.

Eisenhower said he had named Dr. James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to the newly-created post of special assistant to the President for science and technology. He said he expected Killian to mobilize "the full abilities of the scientists and engineers of our country."

Eisenhower listed these other steps he has taken as part of his "program of action":
—Order that "any new missile or related program hereafter originated will, whenever practicable, be put under a single manager and administered without regard to the separate services."

Radio announcer Alto Sonnier of Station KSEG in Crowley said the winds of Hurricane Audrey "were nothing like the ones that moved through here last night. The trees in my front yard were flattened out."

Mystery Objects Sighted at Pantex

White light, blinding bright, in Texas skies Thursday night left watchers in awe and fright. From one tip of the Lone Star State to the other came reports of sightings of a bright light on the western horizon.

Bright, flashing objects hovered for half an hour over Pantex Atomic Energy Commission ordnance plant, 15 miles east of Amarillo, Thursday night, according to plant guards.

The brilliant objects were reported to the State Highway Patrol office by plant guards at 7:46 p.m. A patrolman dispatched to the plant arrived at 8:15 p.m. and reported that he, too, saw "a strange light."

Shame on Our Name

To fail for lack of 2 per cent is discreditable. Yet for two years, Amarillo has shown a 2 per cent failure in its annual United Fund effort.

At the last report meeting of E. M. Blackburn's campaign team, there were some optimistic signs. The employees division, headed by Bill J. Montgomery, went over the top—a 101 per cent report on its assigned $97,000.

Three strange, unidentified lights attracted the attention of two Amarillo Daily News reporters en route to Pantex at 8:30 p.m. First light was sighted in the city limits and at 8:34 p.m. Another light, with a soft red glow, was seen in an almost northerly direction. Minutes later the reporters saw a third light, green in color, low in the northern horizon and, like the first two, soon disappearing in the clouds.

Damages Awarded To Coach's Widow

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UP)—The town of Westerly was ordered today to pay more than $19,000 to the widow and seven children of a former football coach and high school teacher who died after being forced "by professional duties" to play in a softball game.

Workmen's Compensation Commissioner Herman D. Ferrara announced his decision after hearing an appeal of the widow of John di Gangi, one-time Holy Cross College football star.

Hundreds of workers are canvassing the city. If your name by chance is not on a card in the hands of one of these workers, then you can easily make your own contribution directly to the United Fund headquarters at the corner of 7th and Tyler. If you are one of those who constantly asks the worker to come back, you can decide on your contribution today and give it. And if you are one of those who can own a new Cadillac but will not make your contribution to your community life, turn over a new leaf in 1957!

$1,708,550 PAID AT ART AUCTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (UP)—Competing collectors paid $1,708,550 today for 65 paintings and set a new record for the amount realized at any single sale of modern paintings held here or abroad.

The French paintings were assembled by the late George Lury.

CHICAGO (UP)—Officials of 11 nonoperating railroad unions have arranged a meeting in Washington Monday to consider setting a strike date against the Santa Fe Railway.

Set Santa Fe Strike Meeting

The unions, which have 42,000 members, have authorized a strike and a decision yesterday by the National Mediation Board gave them the go-ahead to set a strike date.

The board, by unanimous decision, rejected Santa Fe's request for a rehearing on the deadlocked dispute over a union shop. The board had withdrawn from the case a month ago when members were unable to effect a settlement between management and labor.
